DIGITAL NOMAD STATISTICS

Digital nomads are individuals who work remotely and travel the world while maintaining their livelihoods. They have become increasingly common in recent years due to the widespread availability of technology and the internet. In this guide we'll explore what life as a digital nomad is like and look at some of the most popular statistics that pertain to this lifestyle comprising of 35,000,000 individuals a surprise. Let's dive in!

According to a recent study by Remote.co, there are approximately 4.8 million digital nomads worldwide. Here are some key statistics on digital nomads around the world:

Demographics: The majority of digital nomads are in their 30s and 40s, with about 68% being male and 32% female.

Geographical distribution: The largest concentration of digital nomads is in the United States, followed by the United Kingdom, Australia, and Canada. However, digital nomads can be found in almost every country in the world.

Occupation: The most common occupations among digital nomads include software development, content creation, and digital marketing.

Income: Digital nomads have a relatively high average income, with about 45% earning over $50,000 per year.

Travel patterns: The average digital nomad travels to 3-4 countries per year and stays in each location for an average of 2-3 months.

Working hours: Digital nomads work an average of 35 hours per week, with about 70% reporting that they work more hours as a digital nomad than they did in their previous job.

Technology usage: Digital nomads rely heavily on technology to maintain their livelihoods, with 99% reporting that they use laptops for work, and 92% reporting that they use smartphones.

Health and wellness: Digital nomads place a high value on health and wellness, with about 75% reporting that they exercise regularly and 63% reporting that they follow a healthy diet.

Community: Digital nomads are a highly connected and supportive community, with about 75% reporting that they belong to online groups and forums.

DIGITAL NOMAD VISA

The ease with which we may operate from any location in the world may be the most important lesson the last few years have taught us. Maybe we already knew this, and the COVID-19 epidemic was just the thing to let us realize it. One thing is for certain, though: more individuals than ever before have access to remote employment, which in many situations entails working from anywhere in the world as long as you have a reliable internet connection. Many nations have introduced a variety of Digital Nomad Visas to make it easier for remote employees to conduct business there.

What is a digital nomad visa?

Many nations have recently introduced the "Digital Nomad Visa" which enables people to live and work in their nation for a predetermined amount of time. Typically, a criterion is that you are self-employed and have a business that you can run from anywhere in the world, or that you work for an employer or firm outside of your host nation. In most situations, digital nomad visas are short-term and do not provide a road to citizenship, though there may be a chance to obtain a residence permit in specific circumstances, depending on the country's regulations. There are currently national programs for digital nomad visas in many nations.

You must be at least 18 years old. You have to make a particular minimal monthly income. Depending on the nation you select, there may be different minimum income requirements. You need to be able to work from anywhere in the world.

What type of work can I do with a Digital Nomad Visa?

As long as you can work remotely, you should be able to apply for a visa for digital nomads. Some of the most popular job types for digital nomads are:

Digital entrepreneur
Content creator
Website developer
Social media marketer

Eligibility Criteria for a Digital Nomad Visa

Programs for digital nomads are currently spreading over the globe. The following are a few examples of general requirements for this sort of visa:

Digital nomad visas can provide benefits to both the individual and the host country. For digital nomads, these visas offer a flexible, low-cost way to live and work abroad. They can explore new cultures, learn new languages, and gain new perspectives while still pursuing their careers. Meanwhile, host countries can benefit from the economic activity generated by digital nomads, who can bring new ideas, skills, and perspectives to the local economy.

However, the lack of clear and consistent policies around digital nomad visas has been a barrier to entry for many individuals and businesses. This can lead to uncertainty and confusion for digital nomads, who may struggle to find a welcoming home in a foreign country. It also limits the potential economic benefits for host countries, as digital nomads may choose to work elsewhere if they can't find a suitable visa.

There are several steps that governments can take to make digital nomad visas more accessible and appealing. One solution is to create a standardized visa process, with clear requirements and a streamlined application process. This could make it easier for digital nomads to find a home abroad and provide host countries with a predictable flow of remote workers. Additionally, governments could offer tax incentives or co-working spaces to encourage digital nomads to stay and work in their country.

Where can I get a Digital Nomad Visa in 2023?

The 43 Digital Nomad Visa countries listed below offer some form of visa for digital nomads in 2023, though it may not be referred to as such. These countries are:

ANDORRA*, DOMINICA, MONTENEGRO*, ANGUILLA, DUBAI, MONTserrat, ANTIGUA AND BARBUDA, EC-UADOR, NORTH MACEDONIA*, ARGENTINA*, ESTONIA, NORWAY, ARUBA, GEORGIA, PANAMA, BAHAMAS, GERMANY, PORTUGAL*, BARBADOS, GREECE, ROMANIA, BELIZE, HUNGARY, SAINT LUCIA, BERMUDA, ICELAND, SEYCHELLES, CABO VERDE, INDONESIA, SOUTH AFRICA*, CAYMAN ISLANDS, ITALY*, SPAIN, CROATIA, LATVIA, SRI LANKA*, CURAÇAO, MALTA, TAIWAN, CYPRUS, MAURITIUS, CZECH REPUBLIC, MEXICO.

* A visa for digital nomads has been introduced but has not yet been implemented.

Digital nomad visa in Serbia?

The Law on Foreigners and the Law on Employment of Foreigners prescribe that citizens of third countries can stay in Serbia for up to 90 days without a visa. During that time, they are exempt from taxes and income reporting, provided that they work for foreign employers who are not registered in Serbia, but the Government should soon resolve the issue of legislation on the stay of digital nomads in our country.

Changing Times and Economic Opportunities

As the digital nomad movement grows, so too are countries adapting to this so-called “new normal”. Many countries have got onboard and have created specialized Digital Nomad Visas, while others have made their communities more digital nomad friendly.

Digital nomads spend money on both local goods and services, thus contributing to local economies and adding to the GDP of that given country. With an estimated $787 billion spent by digital nomads each year, it is a huge economic opportunity for countries to tap into.

Traveling while working

While the majority of Digital Nomads prefer staying in the same location for anywhere between three and nine months, this does not mean that travel is off the cards. International travel is often difficult with having to adapt to different time zones, but regional travel is welcomed.

Often, shorter stays entail more travel and leisure whilst longer stays are generally geared up to work-specific trips. Once again, this comes down to personal preference. Many decide to embrace the digital nomad lifestyle fully and carry on with it indefinitely. Others decide to do it for shorter periods of time. Whatever your intention is, you can customize the digital nomad lifestyle to fit your needs!

An attractive advantage of being a digital nomad who loves to travel is that one can work and earn in a strong currency and then travel to countries with a weaker currency, allowing one to save. It is also always recommended to do as the locals do – eat local food, shop at local stores. Western items mean western prices!

Planning the future

When planning your future digital nomad adventure, there are a few things to consider always. At the top of the list is fast, reliable internet! You also want to be comfortable where you are staying – a warm, homely environment where your productivity levels can soar.

Lastly, make sure that you have all the daily requirements covered – local supermarkets, restaurants, gyms, public transport and the like.

5 Fastest Growing Countries in Europe

"2023 Projected Real GDP Growth Rate According to IMF in October: 2.7%",

"Serbia has become Europe's fastest-growing economy thanks to reforms.", Serbian Finance Minister Siniša Mali said.

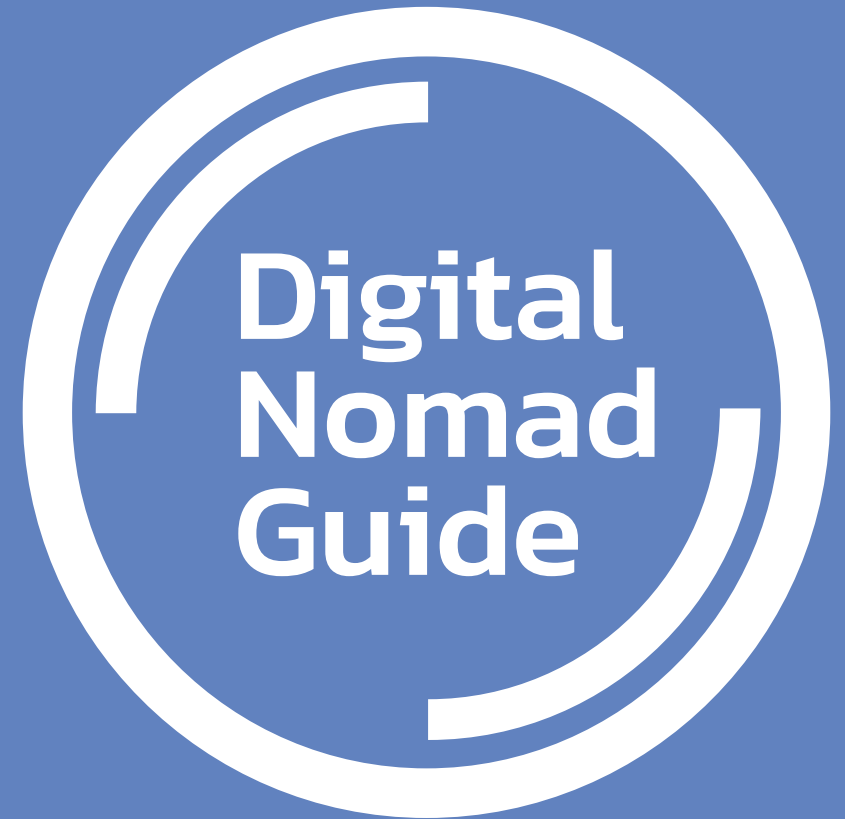

"The reforms implemented since 2014 have led to Serbia becoming Europe's fastest-growing economy amid the biggest-ever global crisis.", Mali Said.

"Our GDP will exceed 60 bln euros for the first time, and ten years ago it stood at 33.7 bln euros.", Mali said.

"The figures are exact and they say that our debt-to-GDP ratio is now at 54 pct, and we inherited a 79 pct debt-to-GDP ratio. The unemployment rate was at 25.9 pct, and now it is at 8.9 pct " Mali said.

"Our credit rating is just one level below investment grade, our FX and gold reserves are at a record high. In their era, the average wage was 331 euros, whereas it will be 720 euros in December of this year, and we expect it to be 820 euros in a year's time," Mali said.

NOVI SAD НОВИ САД

European Capital of Culture Forever!

DIGITAL NOMAD LIFE IN NOVI SAD

Novi Sad is the second largest city in Serbia and is known for its rich history, vibrant culture, and friendly people. The city is also a popular destination for expats, students, and tourists due to its relatively low cost of living compared to other European cities. In this article, we will take a closer look at the cost of living in Novi Sad and what you can expect when it comes to expenses such as housing, food, transportation, and more.

One of the biggest draws for digital nomads in Novi Sad is its low cost of living. Housing costs in the city are very reasonable, with a one-bedroom apartment in the city center costing between $200 and $300 per month. Rent for a three-bedroom apartment in a more suburban area can be found for around $400 to $500 per month. Utilities for a two-bedroom apartment, including electricity, water, and gas, typically run between $100 and $150 per month.

Food is also very affordable in Novi Sad, with a meal at a local restaurant costing between $5 and $10. Groceries are similarly priced, with a week's worth of food for one person costing around $50 to $75. Fresh produce and meat can be found at local markets for a fraction of the cost of supermarkets.

In terms of work options, Novi Sad offers a growing number of coworking spaces and cafes with Wi-Fi, providing digital nomads with flexible and affordable work options. The city is also home to a vibrant tech community, making it an attractive destination for those working in the tech industry.

One of the most famous cultural events in Novi Sad is the EXIT Festival, which is held annually in the summer and attracts visitors from all over the world.

The festival features music, dance, and theater performances, as well as exhibitions and workshops.

Another important cultural event in Novi Sad is the Novi Sad Jazz Festival, which is held in November and features local and international jazz musicians.

The city is also home to several important historical landmarks, including the Petrovaradin Fortress, which dates back to the 17th century and offers stunning views of the city and the Danube River. The city center also features several beautiful baroque and neoclassical buildings, as well as the Neo-Renaissance City Hall and the National Theatre, which is one of the oldest in the country.

DIGITAL NOMAD LIFE IN SUBOTICA

Subotica is a city in northern Serbia, located near the border with Hungary. The area where Subotica is situated has a rich history that dates back to ancient times, and the city itself has a fascinating history that spans several centuries.

The first mention of the town of Subotica dates back to the 14th century when it was a small settlement on the shores of the lake. In the following centuries, Subotica became an important center of trade and commerce, thanks to its location on the main road connecting Central Europe with the Balkans.

Subotica became part of Serbia, and it is now an important cultural, economic, and tourist center in the region, with a population of around 100,000 people.

Subotica has affordable transportation prices, with a monthly pass for the public transportation costing about $30. A new car can be beneficial if you prefer to drive.

In Subotica, rent for a one-bedroom apartment in the city center is from $200 to $300 a month, which is extremely affordable. In a more suburban setting, rent for a three-bedroom apartment can range from $400 to $500 per month. Electricity, water, and gas costs for a two-bedroom apartment normally range from $100 to $150 per month.

Food is also relatively inexpensive; a supper at a neighborhood eatery runs between $5 and $10. A week's worth of meals for one person typically costs between $50 and $75 in groceries. Local markets offer fresh food and meat for a lot less money than supermarkets, between $10,000 and $20,000 when purchased. Gasoline costs about $1.50 per liter, which is a low price for fuel.

A movie ticket costs about $5, while a trip to a nearby museum or gallery costs about $3.

Entertainment expenses in Subotica are also affordable. A day excursion to the surrounding mountains for skiing or hiking can cost between $20 and $30 if you're searching for more exciting activities. In conclusion, Subotica, Serbia, has a cheap cost of living and provides excellent value. Subotica is an excellent alternative for people wishing to live comfortably on a budget, whether they are looking for inexpensive housing, delectable food, or a range of leisure opportunities.

ZRENJANIN ЗРЕЊАНИН

Zrenjanin + Summer + Beer = LOVE

DIGITAL NOMAD LIFE IN ZRENJANIN

Zrenjanin is a city in the Vojvodina region of Serbia, in the northern part of the country. The city dates back to the 14th century and has a long and complicated history. Various empires ruled it over the centuries, including the Ottoman Empire, the Habsburg Monarchy, and the Kingdom of Yugoslavia. During World War II, the Axis powers occupied Zrenjanin, which was heavily damaged. Following the war, the city was rebuilt and grew to become a significant industrial and cultural center in the region.

Zrenjanin is approximately 70 kilometers from Belgrade and approximately 50 km from Novi Sad, which is also the distance to the current border with the European Union (Romania), making its location a particularly important transition center and potential resource in the north-south and east-west directions. Along with the characteristic appearance of Vojvodina's cities, Zrenjanin is distinguished by its abundance of historic and cultural landmarks, successful athletes, well-known puppet shows, and the intriguing "Dani piva" festival (Beer days).

The city of Zrenjanin promotes multiculturalism, international tolerance, and a high regard for culture and the arts. Along with its magnificent theater productions, Zrenjanin is renowned for its world-renowned choirs and aquarelle art colonies. The majority of the structures that line the streets of this city were constructed in the 19th and 20th centuries and serve as significant historical, cultural, and tourism destinations.

The cost of living in Zrenjanin is relatively low compared to other cities in Europe, making it an affordable place to live for both locals and expats.

Housing is one of the most significant expenses in any city, and Zrenjanin is no exception. The average cost of a one-bedroom apartment in the city center is around 300-450 euros per month. However, if you are willing to live in a suburban area, you can find cheaper options for as low as 150 euros per month.

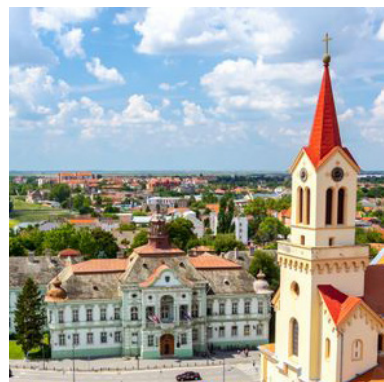

Food is also relatively affordable in Zrenjanin. Basic food items like bread, dairy products, and fruits are readily available and can be purchased for a reasonable price. Eating out at a restaurant is also relatively cheap, with a meal for two people costing around 15-20 euros.

What to see in Zrenjanin?

Here are some of the top sights and events to see in Zrenjanin:

Karadordev Park: A large park named after Serbian Grand Vožd Karadorde Petrović placed in the city centre.

The Old Town: A historic district with well-preserved architecture from the 19th and early 20th centuries.

Zrenjanin City Museum: A museum showcasing the history and culture of Zrenjanin and its surrounding area.

The City Hall: The county building was added by right and left wings, modernised facade in Neobaroque, new balcony, Zsolnay roof tile patterns and several other things like electrical lightning and telephone line. At that time, it was the most modern building in southern part of the Kingdom of Hungary.

Dani Piva (Beer Days) is an annual festival held in Zrenjanin in August, which celebrates the city's long tradition of beer brewing. The festival typically lasts for several days and features a wide selection of local and international beers, as well as various food stalls, live music, and cultural events. During the festival, the streets of Zrenjanin are filled with locals and visitors enjoying the festive atmosphere, trying out different beers, and socializing with friends and family. The festival also includes a beer brewing competition, where local breweries compete for various awards and recognition. The festival has become a significant event in the region, attracting thousands of visitors every year and contributing to the cultural and economic vitality of the city.

CENTRAL SERBIA

Central Serbia is a region located in the heart of Serbia, one of the Balkan countries of Europe. It covers an area of approximately 55,000 square kilometers, and is home to around 5 million people. The region is known for its stunning natural landscapes, rich cultural heritage, and vibrant cities.

One of the most prominent cities in Central Serbia is Belgrade, the country's capital and largest city. Belgrade is situated at the confluence of the Danube and Sava Rivers, and has been inhabited since ancient times. The city is known for its historical landmarks, such as the Belgrade Fortress, as well as its lively nightlife and culinary scene. Belgrade is also a hub for the arts and culture, with numerous theaters, museums, and galleries to explore.

Another notable city in Central Serbia is Kragujevac, which has a rich history as the site of several important events in Serbian history, including the First Serbian Uprising against Ottoman rule in 1804. Today, Kragujevac is home to several museums and cultural institutions, as well as the prestigious University of Kragujevac.

Beyond the cities, Central Serbia is also known for its stunning natural landscapes. The region is home to several national parks, including Kopaonik, which is known for its scenic mountain ranges and skiing opportunities, and Đerdap, which boasts the stunning Đerdap Gorge and the Iron Gates Hydroelectric Power Station. The region also has several spas and wellness centers, such as Vrnjačka Banja, which is known for its healing mineral waters.

In terms of culture, Central Serbia has a rich and diverse heritage. The region has been inhabited by various ethnic groups throughout history, including Serbs, Hungarians, and Romans. As a result, the region has a rich cultural tapestry, with unique customs and traditions that have been passed down through generations. Central Serbia is also known for its music, with several traditional instruments and styles of music that are unique to the region.

The cuisine of these parts of Serbia is known for its hearty and flavorful dishes, which often feature meat, vegetables, and spices.

One of the most popular dishes in Central Serbia is roštilj, which is a type of grilled meat. The most common meats used for roštilj include cevapi (ground beef or pork), pljeskavica (a large, flattened burger), and ražnjići (kebabs). These meats are often served with ajvar, a type of red pepper relish, and kajmak, a creamy dairy spread.

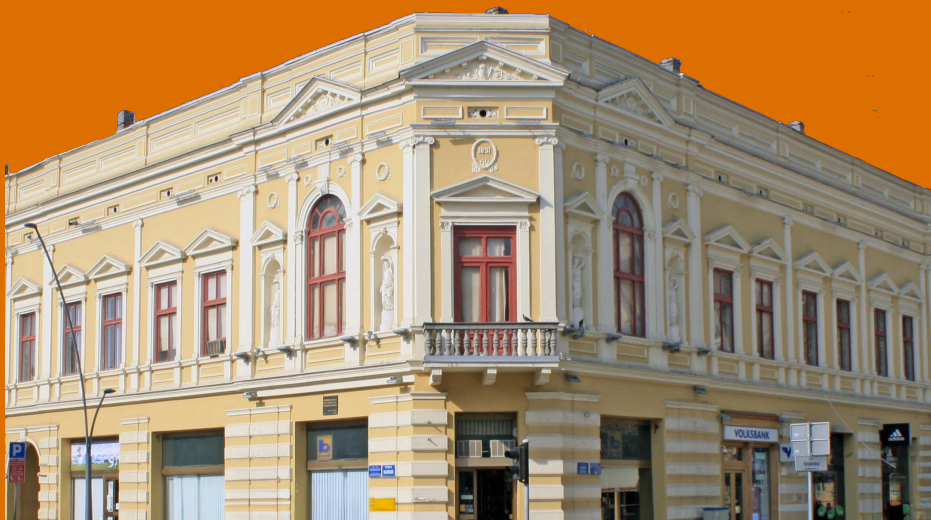

Another popular dish in Central Serbia is sarma, which is a type of stuffed cabbage. The filling for sarma typically includes ground meat, rice, and spices, which are rolled up in boiled cabbage leaves and then cooked in a tomato-based sauce. Sarma is often served with mashed potatoes and bread. Central Serbia is also known for its soups, which are often served as a first course. One of the most popular soups in Central Serbia is čorba, which is a hearty soup made with meat, vegetables, and spices. Other popular soups include pasulj, which is a bean soup, and kupus čorba, which is a cabbage soup.

Central Serbia is also home to a variety of pastries and desserts. One of the most popular pastries is burek, which is a type of flaky pastry filled with meat, cheese, or vegetables. Other popular desserts include krofne (doughnuts), palačinke (crepes), and baklava (a sweet pastry made with filo dough and honey).

In terms of beverages, Central Serbia and Kosovo are known for their rakija, which is a type of fruit brandy that is often served as a digestif. Other popular beverages include beer, wine, and coffee.

DIGITAL NOMAD LIFE IN ČAČAK

Čačak is a charming city located in the central part of Serbia, surrounded by the picturesque hills of the Jelica mountain range. With a population of around 73,000 inhabitants, it is the administrative center of the Moravica District and a hub of cultural and economic activity in the region.

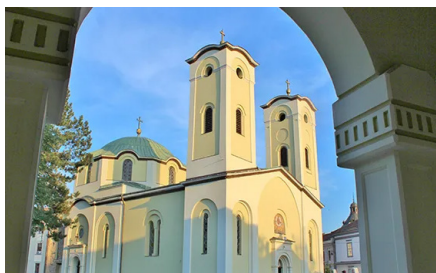

The city boasts a rich history that dates back to the Roman era, with many archaeological sites and cultural monuments attesting to its past. Visitors can explore the ancient Roman fortifications at the nearby Gradina archaeological site, or admire the stunning frescoes of the 14th-century Nikolje Monastery, located just outside the city.

In the heart of the city, the main pedestrian street, Trg Vuka Karadžića, is a bustling hub of activity, with numerous shops, restaurants, and cafes. The street is also home to several historic landmarks, including the 19th-century National Museum and the striking St. Trinity Church, with its distinctive red brick façade.

For those looking for a taste of local culture, the Čačak Cultural Center regularly hosts concerts, plays, and exhibitions, showcasing the talents of local artists and performers. In the summer months, the city also hosts several festivals, including the popular Guča Trumpet Festival, which draws thousands of visitors each year.

Beyond the city limits, the surrounding countryside offers numerous opportunities for outdoor activities, including hiking, skiing, and fishing. The nearby Ovčar-Kablar Gorge, known as the "Serbian Holy Mountain," is a popular destination for spiritual retreats and features several historic monasteries and churches.

What to see in Čačak?

Here are some of the top sights and events to see in Čačak:

Memorial Ossuary: The Memorial ossuary to fallen soldiers in 1912-1918 or Monument to soldiers of four faiths is a war memorial erected on September 23, 1934 to soldiers who lost their lives during the Balkans and the First World War in Čačak, Serbia.

The City Museum: A great place to learn about the history of Čačak, the City Museum is home to a wealth of information and artifacts about the city's rich cultural heritage.

The Roman Baths: An archaeological site in the center of Čačak, in the immediate vicinity of the Belgrade Hotel. It was discovered during the reconstruction of the city center by excavating the foundation for a residential building. Based on the results of research, it was concluded that the thermal baths were built at the end of the 3rd and the beginning of the 4th century. It is assumed that they were demolished in 378. It was discovered that it was the architectural remains of a bathhouse.

The Ovčar-Kablar monasteries: Each of these monasteries is of exceptional cultural and historical importance, not only for the city of Čačak, but also for Serbia in general. Each has its own unique beauty and history. Most of them were created while Serbia was under Turkish rule.

DIGITAL NOMAD LIFE IN Kragujevac

Kragujevac is a city located in central Serbia, with a population of around 150,000 people. It is the fourth largest city in the country, and is known for its rich history, cultural heritage, and beautiful natural surroundings. Kragujevac is becoming increasingly popular among digital nomads. With its low cost of living, rich cultural heritage, and growing community of remote workers, Kragujevac offers a unique and attractive destination for those seeking to balance work and travel.

One of the most significant events in Kragujevac's history took place in 1941, during World War II, when the occupying German forces executed thousands of civilians in a massacre that came to be known as the Kragujevac massacre. The city now has a memorial park dedicated to the victims of this atrocity. In addition to its historical significance, Kragujevac is also a vibrant and modern city, with plenty to offer visitors. The city center is home to a number of important cultural institutions, including the National Museum of Kragujevac, which houses a range of historical and archaeological exhibits, and the Šumarice Memorial Park, which commemorates the victims of the Kragujevac massacre.

Kragujevac is also well-known for its lively nightlife and culinary scene. The city boasts a wide range of bars, clubs, and restaurants, serving up everything from traditional Serbian cuisine to international dishes. Visitors can also enjoy a range of outdoor activities in the surrounding countryside, including hiking, fishing, and skiing.

Overall, Kragujevac is a city with a rich history, a vibrant cultural scene, and plenty of opportunities for visitors to explore and enjoy.

One of the biggest draws for digital nomads in Kragujevac is its low cost of living. Housing costs in the city are very reasonable, with a one-bedroom apartment in the city center costing between $200 and $300 per month. Rent for a three-bedroom apartment in a more suburban area can be found for around $400 to $500 per month. Utilities for a two-bedroom apartment, including electricity, water, and gas, typically run between $100 and $150 per month.

Food is also very affordable in Kragujevac, with a meal at a local restaurant costing between $5 and $10. Groceries are similarly priced, with a week's worth of food for one person costing around $50 to $75. Fresh produce and meat can be found at local markets for a fraction of the cost of supermarkets.

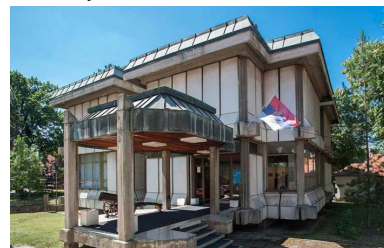

What to see in Kragujevac?

Here are some of the top sights and events to see in Kragujevac:

Šumarice Memorial Park: The park is dedicated to the victims of the Kragujevac massacre that took place during World War II. The park is home to a number of monuments, including the Memorial Ossuary, a monument to the executed schoolchildren, and the Alley of the executed professors.

National Museum of Kragujevac: The museum is housed in a beautiful building and exhibits a range of archaeological, ethnographic and historical artifacts, including the famous "Victor" statue, which is the symbol of the city.

KRUŠEVAC КРУШЕВАЦ

Medieval Capital of Serbia

DIGITAL NOMAD LIFE IN KRUŠEVAC

Kruševac, located in central Serbia, is a city that has been attracting the attention of digital nomads and remote workers due to its low cost of living, rich cultural heritage, and excellent quality of life. Here, we will take a closer look at the cost of living in Kruševac and the benefits it has to offer to potential digital nomads.

Kruševac is a charming city in central Serbia, known for its rich history and cultural heritage. Located at the confluence of the Rasina and Zapadna Morava rivers, Kruševac has a population of approximately 70,000 (city area) people and is the administrative center of the Rasina District.

The city dates back to the 14th century, when it was founded by the Serbian prince Lazar Hrebeljanović. During the 15th century, Kruševac became the capital of Serbia, and many of its most important historical landmarks were built during this time. These include the medieval fortress of Kruševac, the Lazarica Church, and the Prince Lazar Monument.

One of the most famous events in Kruševac's history is the Battle of Kosovo, which took place in 1389 near the nearby town of Kosovo Polje. This battle, which saw the Ottoman Empire defeat the Serbian army, is commemorated in Kruševac with a large park and memorial complex.

In addition to its historical significance, Kruševac is also known for its vibrant cultural scene. The city is home to numerous museums and art galleries, including the National Museum of Kruševac and the Museum of Contemporary Art. Kruševac also hosts several festivals throughout the year, including the International Documentary Film Festival and the Kruševac Theatre Festival.

The city's location in central Serbia also makes it an ideal base for exploring the surrounding countryside. Visitors can hike in the nearby Jastrebac Mountains, visit the Studenica Monastery (a UNESCO World Heritage Site), or take a dip in the mineral springs at the nearby town of Vrnjačka Banja.

Kruševac is considered to be one of the most affordable cities in Europe for digital nomads, with a low cost of living compared to other major cities in Europe. The cost of living in Kruševac is much lower than in Belgrade, the capital of Serbia, and other Western European cities. For example, the cost of a cup of coffee in a café is around 1-2 euros, while a meal in a mid-range restaurant is about 5-8 euros. Housing costs in Kruševac are also affordable, with a one-bedroom apartment in the city center costing around 200-300 euros per month. Additionally, transportation costs are low, with a monthly ticket for public transportation costing around 15-20 euros.

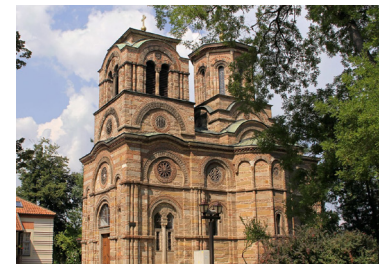

What to see in Kruševac?

Here are some of the top sights and events to see in Kruševac:

Kruševac Fortress: Built in the 14th century, this medieval fortress served as the residence of Serbian prince Lazar Hrebeljanović. It is now a popular tourist attraction and hosts cultural events throughout the year.

Lazarica Church: This 14th-century church was built by Prince Lazar in honor of his son who died in the Battle of Kosovo. It is known for its unique architecture and beautiful frescoes.

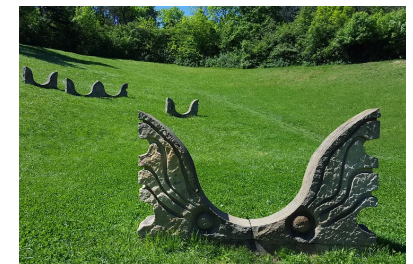

National Museum of Kruševac: This museum houses a collection of historical artifacts from Kruševac and the surrounding region. Visitors can learn about the city's rich history and cultural heritage through exhibits on archaeology, ethnography, and art.

Prince Lazar Monument: This monument commemorates the heroism of Prince Lazar in the Battle of Kosovo. It is located in the city center and is a popular spot for taking photos.

Slobodište Memorial Complex: This spomenik at Kruševac commemorates the hundreds Partisan soldiers and civilians that were executed in the city between 1941 and 1944 during the German occupation of Serbia.

DIGITAL NOMAD LIFE IN NIŠ

Niš is a historic city located in southeastern Serbia, known for its rich culture, friendly locals, and ancient landmarks. With a population of around 250,000 people, Niš is the third-largest city in Serbia and an important economic and cultural center in the region.

The city's history dates back to ancient times, and it has been a crucial cross-roads between the East and the West for centuries. As a result, the city has a diverse cultural heritage that can be seen in its architecture, cuisine, and traditions. Some of the most famous landmarks in Niš include the Niš Fortress, a 2nd-century Roman monument; the Skull Tower, a chilling reminder of Ottoman rule; and the Mediana, a complex of Roman ruins that was once a lavish imperial residence.

Apart from its rich history, Niš is also a vibrant modern city that offers plenty of things to do and see. The city center is a bustling hub of activity, with cafes, shops, and restaurants serving up delicious local cuisine. Visitors can also enjoy a wide range of cultural events, from music festivals to theater performances, or take part in outdoor activities like hiking and cycling in the nearby mountains.

One of the things that make Niš unique is its warm and welcoming people. The locals are known for their hospitality and friendliness, and visitors to the city are often treated like old friends. Whether you're strolling through the streets or enjoying a meal in a local restaurant, you're sure to feel the warmth and generosity of the people of Niš.

This city has recently become a hub for entrepreneurs, freelancers, and remote workers looking to escape the high cost of living in larger European cities while still enjoying a high quality of life.

One of the key factors that make Niš an attractive destination for digital nomads is its affordability. The cost of living in Niš is significantly lower than other European cities, making it an ideal destination for those on a budget. Housing, food, and transportation are all relatively inexpensive, which makes it easy for digital nomads to stretch their budgets further.

One of the things that make Niš unique is its warm and welcoming people. The locals are known for their hospitality and friendliness, and visitors to the city are often treated like old friends. Whether you're strolling through the streets or enjoying a meal in a local restaurant, you're sure to feel the warmth and generosity of the people of Niš.

Another advantage of Niš as a destination for digital nomads is its excellent infrastructure. The city has a reliable and fast internet connection, which is essential for remote work. There are also plenty of coworking spaces, cafes, and other public areas where digital nomads can work and connect with others.

What to see in Niš?

Niš Fortress: This imposing fortress dominates the city skyline and has been a key feature of Niš for centuries. It was built during the Ottoman era and served as a military stronghold, but today it is open to the public and features museums, galleries, and concerts.

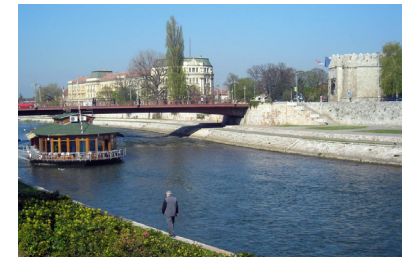

Skull Tower (Ćele kula): A macabre but fascinating monument, the Skull Tower was built by the Ottomans in the early 19th century to commemorate a battle against the Serbian rebels. The tower is made of human skulls and is a chilling reminder of the city's turbulent history.

Nišava River: The Nišava River is a picturesque waterway that runs through the city and offers visitors a chance to enjoy a leisurely stroll along its banks. There are also several restaurants and cafes that line the river, making it a perfect spot for a relaxing meal.

Mediana Archaeological Site: This Roman archaeological site dates back to the 4th century and was once the luxurious villa of Emperor Constantine the Great. Today, visitors can explore the ruins of the villa and see its impressive mosaics and other artifacts.

Bubanj Memorial Park, "The Three Fists": This spomenik complex at Niš commemorates the +10,000 Serbian, Jew and Roma that were executed at this site (a small forested hill just southwest of Niš) from February 1942 to September 1944 by the Nazi occupiers.

Many cafes, co-working spaces, and hotels offer free Wi-Fi, and the average internet speed is around 60 Mbps. This means that digital nomads can easily work and communicate with clients and colleagues from anywhere in the city.

There are several co-working spaces in Leskovac that cater to digital nomads. These spaces offer all the amenities that remote workers need, including high-speed internet, comfortable workstations, meeting rooms, and printing facilities. Digital nomads can rent a desk or a private office, depending on their needs, and work alongside other like-minded professionals.

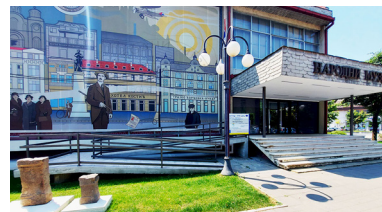

For digital nomads who prefer a more relaxed working environment, Leskovac has plenty of cafes and restaurants with free Wi-Fi. Many of these establishments are open late, which means that digital nomads can work in a comfortable setting, while enjoying a cup of coffee or a delicious meal.

What to see in Leskovac?

Hisar is a 341-metre (1,119 ft) hill near Leskovac in southern Serbia. The hill, a town symbol, is known for the remains of a large, fortified Bronze Age settlement and has been designated a nature park. The evidence confirms almost continuous habitation from the Neolithic to the Ottoman periods, and even today, as the town of Leskovac engulfs the hill.

The National Museum showcases the cultural and historical heritage of the city and the surrounding region. The museum has collections of archeology, ethnography, and art, as well as a library and an archive.

The Leskovac Grill Festival is an annual event that celebrates the city’s barbecue tradition. The festival takes place in September and features various grilled meat dishes, such as “ćevapi”, “pljeskavica”, and “ražnjići”. Visitors can also enjoy live music and cultural events.

Justiniana Prima was an Eastern Roman city that existed from 535 to 615 and is now an archaeological site known as or Caričin Grad (The Empress’s Town) in the Leskovac region of southern Serbia, near modern Lebane. Emperor Justinian I (527-565) established it as the metropolitan seat of the newly established Archbishopric of Justiniana Prima, which became the main church administrative body of the central and western Balkans, with jurisdiction extending from Praevalitana to Dacia Ripensis.

Monument to the Revolution: This monument at the spomenik complex in Leskovac, Serbia commemorates over 1,000 victims from this area who perished during the National Liberation War (WWII).

ICT SERBIA

ICT SERBIA

Serbia now generates 10 percent of its GDP from the ICT sector, among the top four export sectors, along with steel, cars, and agriculture. According to Serbia's Statistics Office, there were over 3,354 firms in Serbia's tech sector in Q1 2022 employing 47,609 people. Major employers in this sector include prominent U.S. companies and their affiliates. Serbian tech companies produce software for industries ranging from agriculture to medicine, as well as tracking and cloud applications, online games, and testing. They also run call centers and customer helplines, ranging from low-skilled to very high-tech.

Human Capital

The startup scene is present and gaining attention, with many firms successfully relocating to Western Europe or pitching themselves to be bought by foreign firms. Among the most successful are Nordeus, the Belgrade-based developer of the "Top Eleven Football Manager" game that has topped app store charts and was purchased in June 2021 by U.S. company Take-Two Interactive, and FishingBooker, which has been described as "the Airbnb of fishing trip charters." Serbia's Strawberry Energy is a crowd-funded startup that produces solar-powered smart benches, providing Wi-Fi access, mobile-phone charging facilities, and information services in public venues, already present in 23 countries. Serbia has high-quality ICT specialists with competitive wages that are attractive for foreign companies looking to outsource. Serbia is attractive in the tech space due to its low-wage but qualified workforce, with excellent English-language and tech skills, as well as its investment incentives of up to €10,000 per employee. Major companies such as Microsoft, IBM, Intel, NCR, and Seven Bridges have either established development centers and campuses in Serbia or have outsourced work to local firms, offering wages that are more than three times higher than the country's monthly average take-home pay of €520 / $616 (2021), but still lower than those offered in EU countries. While still lower than competing tech labor markets in Europe, the cost of developers is rapidly rising.

eGovernment Service

Digitization of state administration and improved provision of services to citizens are among the government's key priorities. In 2017, the government established the Office for Information Technologies and e-Government to centralize administration bodies, communication infrastructure, and government websites into one digital structure. The Office also coordinates the work of the National Center for Security of the ICT System (national CERT).

In December 2018, the Office for Information Technologies and e-Government created the National Open Data Portal, a central portal for government data/information available to the public. This National Open Data Portal is directly linked to the Open Data Portal of the European Union. The project is being implemented in cooperation with the UN Development Program in Serbia (UNDP), the World Bank, the UK Government's Good Governance Fund (GGF), and the Swedish International

Leading Sub-Sectors Broadband Connectivity

Serbia ranked 29th in the world for mobile speeds and 55th for fixed broadband speeds. There are 212 internet service providers (ISPs). Of those, 91 provide wireless access, 37 provide cable access, 24 provide fiber-optic access to homes and businesses, 15 provide digital subscriber line (xDSL) access, 13 provide Ethernet/LAN access, and three provide mobile access. The number of fixed broadband subscribers in Serbia stood at 1.7 million, while the number of mobile broadband users reached 6.48 million. According to the Government Strategy for Information Society Development, high-quality internet with speed above 100 Mbps should be available for all citizens of Serbia by the end of 2023.

Smart Cities

The development of a Smart City infrastructure in Serbia is progressing so fast. Wi-Fi was recently introduced in Belgrade public transportation systems. National airline Air Serbia has also rolled out wireless internet access on its fleet. Public transportation systems in Belgrade are beginning to utilize systems that provide riders with real time arrival information through GPS systems.

Cybersecurity

Serbia is in the process of incorporating into its national legislation the EU Directive on the Security of Network and Information Systems (NIS Directive), which is expected to boost demand for cybersecurity solutions. The Ministry of Interior is developing cybersecurity capabilities with a government-wide plan to establish a cybersecurity intelligence center in Belgrade in the near future.

Gaming

Serbia's gaming industry is one of Serbia's quickest growing sectors. According to the Serbian Games Association, Serbia is home to an estimated 70+ studios and companies employing more than 1,500 professionals. Leading local gaming companies recognized in the above report are Nordeus and 3Lateral, as well as GameCredits and OriginTrail.

Opportunities

The government is using its strong fiscal position to make much needed investments into digitization across every sector. Increasingly government platforms are moving online as Serbia adopts e-government solutions with a leadership dedicated also to digitizing the already strong school system and helping to rear a new digital workforce.

Serbia will continue to invest in ultrafast broadband connections with new fiber access and increase network availability for all users, thus providing broadband with speeds of at least 100 Mbps. The strategy also calls for the development of a New Generation Network in rural areas and other regions in Serbia that are not economical for private operators.

IT TOURISM

IT tourism, also known as tech tourism or digital tourism, is a growing trend in the travel industry. With the increasing role of technology in our daily lives, more and more people are interested in visiting destinations that offer unique and innovative technological experiences. Serbia is one such destination that has emerged as a popular IT tourism spot in recent years. Let's take a closer look at IT tourism in Serbia and compare it with other countries in the world.

Serbia is located in Southeast Europe and has a rich history and culture that attract millions of visitors each year. However, in recent years, the country has also gained recognition as a destination for IT tourism. Belgrade, the capital city of Serbia, is home to a thriving tech industry, and the city has become a hub for startups and IT companies. The city's vibrant tech scene has given rise to a range of IT tourism activities, including tech tours, hackathons, and tech conferences.

One of the most popular IT tourism activities in Serbia is the Tech Tour, which takes visitors on a tour of Belgrade's tech scene. During the tour, visitors can visit some of the city's most innovative tech startups and learn about the latest technological developments in the country. Another popular activity is the Belgrade Venture Forum, a tech conference that brings together startups, investors, and tech experts from around the world.

Serbia's IT tourism industry has been growing rapidly in recent years, and the country has been investing heavily in developing its tech infrastructure. The government has launched several initiatives to support the growth of the tech industry, including tax incentives for startups and the creation of technology parks. These initiatives have helped to create a favorable environment for tech entrepreneurs, and as a result, Serbia has become a hotspot for IT startups.

When it comes to comparing Serbia's IT tourism industry with other countries in the world, it's clear that the country has a lot to offer. Other destinations that are popular for IT tourism include Silicon Valley in the United States, Tokyo in Japan, and Tel Aviv in Israel. These destinations are known for their vibrant tech scenes and offer a range of IT tourism activities, such as startup tours, hackathons, and tech conferences.

However, what sets Serbia apart is its unique combination of history, culture, and technology. While Silicon Valley may be the birthplace of many of the world's most innovative tech companies, it can't offer the same cultural and historical experiences as Serbia. Visitors to Serbia can explore ancient fortresses and monasteries, sample traditional Serbian cuisine, and experience the country's vibrant music scene, all while learning about the latest developments in the tech industry.

In conclusion, IT tourism is a growing trend in the travel industry, and Serbia has emerged as a popular destination for tech enthusiasts. The country's thriving tech industry, combined with its rich history and culture, makes it an attractive destination for visitors from around the world. While other destinations like Silicon Valley and Tokyo may offer more extensive tech scenes, Serbia offers a unique and unforgettable IT tourism experience.
